COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRESS

440 West 110th Street New York, N. Y. 10025 NON-PROFIT ORG.
U. S. POSTAGE
PAID
NEW YORK, N. Y.
PERMIT No. 5976

THEODOR H NELSON VASSAR COLLEGE

POUGHKEEPSIE N Y

12601

NATO AND THE RANGE OF AMERICAN CHOICE William T. R. Fox and Annette Baker Fox

Through an analysis of United States activities in the North American Treaty Organization over more than fifteen years, including not only decisions involving national security but also arms control, "disimperialism," foreign trade and economic aid to developing countries, the authors examine how NATO has been used to serve American policies and, conversely, how participation in NATO has influenced the American policy process. Where relevant, the American experience in NATO is compared with that in other international organizations.

CONTENTS

- I. The Treaty and the Organization
- II. The Development of NATO and Other Organizations
- III. American Perspectives: The Role of NATO and Other Organizations
- IV. American Perspectives: The Role of the United States in NATO
- V. United States Policy and International Organization Membership
- VI. NATO Potentialities and United States Choices
- VII. NATO and American Decision Processes: The Executive Branch
- VIII. NATO and Congress
- IX. Decision-Making in NATO and the United States Government
- X. The Appeals of Pluralism and the Costs
- Appendix A. One Model of an Organized Alliance
- Appendix B. Functions of Comparable International Organizations
- Appendix C. Some Notes on Burden-Sharing and Fair Shares

This is one of a series of publications sponsored by the Institute of War and Peace Studies of Columbia University.

William T. R. Fox is Professor of International Relations and Director of the Institute of War and Peace Studies of Columbia University. Annette Baker Fox is a Research Associate of the Institute of War and Peace Studies and is currently teaching international relations at Barnard College.

International Affairs

New Books from Columbia University Press

ORDER FORM

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRESS 136 South Broadway Irvington-on-Hudson, New York 10533 Please send me: copy/ies of CENTRAL ASIA: A Century of Russian Rule, edited by Edward Allworth, @ $12.95 copy/ies of DISARMAMENT AND WORLD ECONOMIC IN-TERDEPENDENCE, edited by Emile Benoit, @ $8.00 copy/ies of PATHS TO WORLD ORDER, edited by Andrew W. Cordier and Kenneth Maxwell, @ $1.75 copy/ies of NATO AND THE RANGE OF AMERICAN CHOICE, by William T. R. Fox and Annette Baker Fox, @ $7.95 copy/ies of THE CHINESE COMMUNIST ARMY IN ACTION. by Alexander L. George, @ $6.95 copy/ies of THE FIRST VIETNAM CRISIS, by Melvin Gurtov, @ $7.00 Please add appropriate amount for state and local taxes. Name Address City_____State____Zip Code__ Remittance must accompany all orders from individuals.

Note: Teachers at accredited institutions are entitled to a 10% professional discount.

PATHS TO WORLD ORDER

Andrew W. Cordier and Kenneth Maxwell, Editors

These essays, based on lectures delivered at the Sixth World Order Study Conference sponsored by the National Council of Churches and the Methodist Church in tribute to Dag Hammarskjold, are all concerned with the need for a common ethic in international affairs. Designed as a living memorial, they focus not only on Hammarskjold's inner life and methods of working, but also on ideas and concerns which were among the primary passions of his life.

CONTENTS

Introduction, by Kenneth Maxwell

Motivations and Methods of Dag Hammarskjold, by Andrew W. Cordier

Dag Hammarskjold: The Inner Person, by Henry P. Van Dusen

The Relevance of Theology in a Revolutionary World, by Arend T. Van Leeuwen

A Challenge to the Affluent Nations, by Barbara Ward

Major Dilemma: Rich Nations and Poor Nations, by Emilio E. Castro

The Voices of Africa and Their Message, by Absalom L. Vilakazi

Advances Toward Understanding: The West and Asia, by Arthur S. Lall

Andrew W. Cordier is Dean of the School of International Affairs, Columbia University. Kenneth Maxwell was formerly with the National Council of Churches.

Columbia Paperback, number 78

67-19877

THE FIRST VIETNAM CRISIS Chinese Communist Strategy and United States Involvement, 1953-1954 Melvin Gurtov

An analysis of the crisis of 1953-1954 which resulted in the withdrawal of France from Indochina, the creation of two Vietnams, and the beginning of our multi-billion dollar commitment in the Vietnam War. "THE FIRST VIETNAM CRISIS makes a solid contribution to better public understanding of the morass by which we permitted ourselves to become engulfed, and performs a national service by showing how we may avoid similar pitfalls in the future."—General Matthew B. Ridgway

CONTENTS

Foreword by Roger Hilsman

- 1. The Sino-Vietnamese Relationship Development of the Vietminh, 1945-1949 The Chinese Communist Commitment, 1949-1953
- 2. Out One Door and in Another: The American Commitment Background to Involvement Formulating an Indochina Policy
- 3. Washington and Paris: The Political Tangle
- 4. Strategy: The New Look and "Massive Retaliation"
 Programming for the Long Haul
 The January 12 Speech and Its Impact on the West
 American Strategy and Its Impact on the Communist Camp
- 5. The Road to Dienbienphu: Diplomacy and Strategy, February-March 1954

January-February: Erection of a Deadline March: Plans for Action

- 6. The Problem of Intervention: April 1954 April 1-14: Quest for Sanction April 15-24: Collapse April 25-May 8: Taking the Middle Road
- 7. Toward A Settlement
 Communist Strategy
 Preventing a Stampede: The Western Position
 Coming to Terms
- 8. The Crisis in Vietnam
 The American Failure
 China's Perception of the Vietnam Crisis
- 9. Epilogue: The Indochina Legacy

One of the Studies of the East Asian Institute. Melvin Gurtov specializes in Communist China as a Staff Member of the Social Science Department, the RAND Corporation.

67-12207 228 pages

THE CHINESE COMMUNIST ARMY IN ACTION

The Korean War and Its Aftermath

Alexander L. George

In an era of advanced nuclear weapons, the leaders of the Chinese People's Liberation Army argue that their superior morale and military skill can compensate for inferior weapons. That their slogan "man-overweapons" is more than an empty boast was demonstrated by the performance of the PLA in Korea during the initial phase of their involvement. Superior UN fire and airpower soon rendered the PLA some crushing blows, however, and exposed the weakness of the PLA system. The Chinese were quick to realize this and even during truce negotiations began to professionalize their army. The professional character of the PLA lasted until 1959, when Mao, apprehensive of the power of the PLA officer corps, fired many of the professionals and re-instated the pre-Korean system.

In 1951, the author interviewed approximately three hundred Chinese prisoners of war in an effort to understand what motivated them. From these interviews, he has reconstructed in detail the kind of egalitarian ethos, social organization, and morale-building system which the Chinese initially employed in Korea and which forms the basis of the PLA today. The military model which he describes has been influential not only in China itself but also in the organization of guerilla forces and armies throughout Southeast Asia.

CONTENTS

- 1. The Chinese Intervention in Korea
- 2. The Interviews
- 3. The Chinese Communist Military Model
- 4. The Role and Performance of Company Political Officers
- 5. Criticism Meetings and the Morale Informants System
- 6. Leadership in Combat Units
- 7. Motivation and Control of Combat Personnel
- 8. War Indoctrination
- 9. The Erosion of Morale
- 10. The Erosion of Organizational Controls
- 11. Developments in the PLA Since the Korean War

Alexander L. George is a specialist on political-military studies at the RAND Corporation and was formerly Head of its Social Sciences Dept.

$7.00

DISARMAMENT AND WORLD ECONOMIC INTERDEPENDENCE Emile Benoit, Editor

This book, stemming from the International Conference on Economic Aspects of World Disarmament and Interdependence held in Oslo, Norway in 1965, makes available the first results of research and policy analysis being conducted by the Program of Research on International Disarmament and Arms Control of Columbia University. It also relates these studies to the broad strategy of interdependence which would use economic resources released by arms reductions in expanding East-West trade, in initiating and strengthening East-West joint ventures in science, technology, and international development, and in other projects that would improve the world environment and restrain international violence.

CONTENTS

Part I. Background to the Problems

Interdependence on a Small Planet

Part II. Economic Aspects of Disarmament and Arms Control

The World Burden of National Defense

Economic Factors in Soviet Attitudes towards Arms Control

Arms Control and the Vulnerability of Communist China's Economy to External Pressures and Inducements

The Transfer of Defense Industry Capabilities to the Solution of Domestic Problems

The Effect of Disarmament on the Balance of Payments of the United Kingdom

The Economics of Regional Arms Races

The Economic Consequences of Disarmament in Norway

Disarmament and its Economic Consequences for the Atomic and Aerospace Industries

Some Effects of Disarmament on Research and Development

Public Opinion on the Economic Effects of Disarmament

Part III. Competition, Cooperation and Convergence in an Interdependent World

Competitive Coexistence in Growth Rates

East-West Trade in an Arms Control Context

Economic Growth and the International Division of Labour

Science and Technology for an Interdependent World

Disarmament and the Strategy of the World War against Hunger and Poverty

Convergence of Economic Systems in East and West

Emile Benoit is Professor of International Business in the Graduate School of Business, Columbia University.

260 pages $8.00

CENTRAL ASIA: A Century of Russian Rule

Edward Allworth, Editor

"The literature on the history, lands, peoples, and cultures of Central Asia is as spotty as it is vast. In this light this volume... may be fully appreciated. (Professor Allworth) and his colleagues have produced an authoritative and informative work which is fascinating reading to boot. The collected essays go a long way towards separating fables from fact."

—Library Journal

CONTENTS

- 1. Encounter
- 2. People, Languages, and Migrations
- 3. The Population and the Land
- 4. Systematic Conquest, 1865 to 1884
- 5. Organizing and Colonizing the Conquered Territories
- 6. The Stirring of National Feeling
- 7. Social and Political Reform
- 8. The Fall of the Czarist Empire
- 9. Civil War and New Governments
- 10. The National Republics Lose Their Independence
- 11. Agricultural Development
- 12. Industrialization
- 13. The Changing Intellectual and Literary Community
- 14. The Focus of Literature
- 15. Musical Tradition and Innovation
- 16. Modernizing Architecture, Art, and Town Plans

Contributors include Edward Allworth, Hélène Carrère d'Encausse, Ian Murray Matley, Karl H. Menges, Johanna Spector, and Arthur Sprague. Edward Allworth is Associate Professor in the Faculty of International Affairs, Columbia University.

$12.95

66-16288 Illustrated 552 pages

BUSINESS REPLY MAIL NO POSTAGE STAMP NECESSARY IF MAILED IN THE UNITED STATES

FIRST CLASS PERMIT #1178 NEW YORK, N.Y.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRESS
136 SOUTH BROADWAY
IRVINGTON-ON-HUDSON, NEW YORK 10533